ENGAGE-EMPOWER-EVOLVE

Pushing the Frontiers of Student Affairs

6-10 AUGUST 2018

UNIVERSITI TEKNOLOGI MALAYSIA
KUALA LUMPUR, MALAYSIA

STAFF CONFERENCE

Students are at the heart and soul of student affairs professionals. The diverse student body demands passion, diligence and strong commitment from these professionals in their day-to-day operations. They are the unsung heroes behind students' success, providing the best of services and assistance to the student population.

The 4th Industrial Revolution impacts higher education in significant and profound ways. As a result, issues and challenges faced by student affairs professionals today may be different from those experienced years ago. Amidst increased expectations, reduced funding and greater interdependency between stakeholders, these professionals need to swiftly adapt to change and deliver. Through international networks such as the Asia Pacific Student Services Association (APSSA), the student affairs professionals are able to build connections and collaborate with one another, enabling them to be engaged in current developments related to their core work, subsequently supporting their personal and professional development through peer learning and exchange of experience.

The 16th APSSA International Conference 2018 calls for participants to bring in the changing roles of student affairs and work collectively towards development of holistic, balanced and entrepreneurial students with the right attitude and competencies for the 21st century. The theme "Engage- Empower- Evolve: Paving the Frontier of Student Affairs" was specially chosen in view of current developments in higher education, which affect student affairs professionals' respective of geographical contexts and higher education systems. It is argued that participants have to better connect with their stakeholders (employers) be consistent in their line of work (temporal), and an eager to embrace transformation (perennial). At the end of the conference, it is hoped that participants would have a renewed sense of purpose towards their role. This would then motivate them to identify fresh insights, innovative approaches and room for improvement for the benefit of students under their care.

SUBTHEMES

Five subthemes have been identified for the staff conference of the 16th APSSA International Conference 2018. The five subthemes are as follows:

- ▶ C1 - EMPOWERMENT
- Engaging and Empowering for Future Careers
This subtheme focuses on the role of student affairs professionals in supporting students' career development. Discussions under this subtheme include, but not limited to, graduates employability, industry engagement, career services, entrepreneurial ventures, scholarship and industrial strategies, as well as innovative models to prepare students for their future careers.
- ▶ C2 - WELLNESS AND MENTAL HEALTH
- Current Challenges, Future Opportunities

Discussions under this subtheme include, but not limited to, student counselling, mental healthcare services, recruitment and operating procedures in managing student mental well-being, as well as peer structure, pastoral care, religious guidance and other forms of support for students in need.
- ▶ C3 - STUDENT RESILIENCE
- Identifying Sustainable Business Models
This subtheme looks at the provision of both on- and off-campus student resilience and its management. Discussions under this subtheme include, but not limited to, funding models, property development, maintenance, options for revenue generation, as well as future trends in student residence development among property developers and private operators.

ENGAGE - EMPOWER - EVOLVE Paving the Frontier of Student Affairs

The Asia Pacific Student Services Association (APSSA) conference is organised once every two years. The conference brings together participants from APSSA member countries for networking, explore professional development and collaboration opportunities, and discuss pertinent issues on student affairs.

STUDENT CONFERENCE

Students today maintain multiple identities. They learn, interact and connect with each other, as well as with the world around them not just through face-to-face encounters, but also through the screens on their mobile phones. As a result, their knowledge structures, belief systems, and how they respond to the environment are also shaped by their interactions, both online and offline.

The 4th Industrial Revolution reshapes the world of work, social norms and conventions, and economic development for our students. Institutions of higher learning are capable of and will be able to help them to navigate the swift transformation. That said, there is a limit to what the institutions can do for the students. They should be aware of who they are, what they can do, and the obstacles that they represent in the society. Additionally, they need to have the resilience to face an uncertain yet exciting future, and the conviction that they can address those challenges with their own effort and willpower.

The 16th APSSA International Conference 2018 highlights pertinent issues for discussion in the student track of the conference. It is argued that participants have to look back at their own experiences (past), identify ways to reach out and act (present), and look at their roles and responsibilities in a different light (future). It is hoped that the conference would enable participants to share experiences, connect specific lessons, and bring practices which could be implemented at their institutions post-conference. They would then be able to work effectively with student affairs professionals for the benefit of the greater student population.
